TERMS OF SALE

This is a PUBLIC and MAIL AUCTION SALE.

Lots will be sold on the date indicated. Send LATE BIDS by airmail.

Lots will be sold in the order listed to the highest bidder, either present or by mail. Obviously, the vagaries of the world's postal systems, both local and international, require early posting of bids.

Acceptable numismatic trade credit references, or a 25 per cent deposit, are necessary to assure entry of bids from those who have not previously established credit with our firm.

There is no charge or commission for bids mailed to HENRY CHRISTENSEN INC., nor is there any buyer's premium or charge levied on purchases. We will purchase lots for mail bidders below the maximums given, where auction competition so permits.

The highest bidder shall be the buyer, at the normal bidding advance over the second high bid, provided, however, that the acceptance of any bid shall be solely at the absolute discretion of the auctioneer, to whom is reserved the right to accept or reject any and all bids.

Unlimited or Buy bids will not be accepted. All bids are per lot.

Successful bidders must specify any changes they require to replace our normal REGISTERED AIRMAIL delivery. Insurance, postage, and shipping charges incurred will be added to invoices, together with any applicable sales taxes. Domestic shipments will be insured via the U.S. Postal Service. Overseas shipments will be insured with private coverage. Successful bidders who want delivery delayed or coins held for future pickup should note this on their bid sheets; however, invoices will be sent and must be paid immediately so that consignors may be properly reimbursed. Lots will not be delivered in the auction room.

Auction sales are strictly for U.S. Cash Funds. Payment must be made immediately upon receipt of material or upon notification. We reserve the right to demand payment before delivery, or to forward lots C.O.D.

Unpaid accounts after 30 days will have a credit service charge of 2 per cent added to the balance each month that the account remains in arrears. If the purchase price has not been paid within the time limit, lots may be resold, and any loss arising from such sale will be charged to the defaulter. If the auctioneers, at their discretion, should institute any legal action to secure collection of a delinquent account, the defaulting purchaser shall pay all legal expenses or collection fees incurred by the auctioneers, and such charges will be added to the amount owed.

Until paid for in full, all lots remain the property of HENRY CHRISTENSEN INC., on behalf of the consignors.

Auction lots will be available for inspection by appointment, at our Madison Offices - Two Central Avenue - during the weeks preceding the sale. Auction lots will also be shown in the auction room at the Sheraton Centre Hotel (Seventh Avenue & 52nd Street, New York, New York, Telephone 212-581-1000) during the hours prior to each session of the sale.

Unless otherwise indicated, all material catalogued and sold in this sale is guaranteed to be genuine and as represented. Any estimates in the catalog are based upon current catalog values or market conditions, but each lot may be sold for a greater or lesser amount.

We acknowledge the possibility of errors or typographical mistakes, and any errors on our part will be corrected. Please be careful in placing your bids and keep a copy of them. We cannot be responsible for your errors. There will be absolutely no returns without the written permission of the cataloguer. FLOOR BUYERS MAY NOT RETURN ANY LOTS for discrepancies in bidding, grading, or description!

Please sign your bid sheet. Submission of a signed bid sheet constitutes acceptance of the written terms of sale under which the auction is conducted. Persons bidding as agents for others will be in all ways responsible and accountable for their bids as if they were bidding for their own account.

HERBERT MELNICK-LICENSED AUCTIONEER
HANS M.F. SCHULMAN-LICENSED AUCTIONEER

FELLOW NUMISMATISTS:—

Welcome to our Seventy-Ninth Public and Mail Auction Sale to be held at the Tenth New York International Numismatic Convention. This year's sale promises to be one of the finest that we have held in conjunction with these international conventions. A feature of the auction is the selection of numismatic treasures from the collection of the late Frank Liveright. Mr. Liveright's avid collecting years were from about 1911 to about 1925, though he remained interested in coins until his death. He was collecting during a golden period in international numismatics, especially when many fine collections were dispersed in the post World War One era. Aided by such prominent numismatists as the Schulmans of Amsterdam, Spink and Lincoln in London, and Moritz Wormser, the Chapmans, and Thomas Elder in the United States he was able to form a marvellous collection of coins at what today would be considered impossibly low prices. There were more nice coins around in those days, and fewer collectors of them. We are delighted to offer these coins to you, our clients; "fresh meat" for the numismatic larder, handsome coins with distinguished pedigrees which have been off the market for over 50 years. Rounded off by other numismatic properties, the sale should contain something for even the most refined numismatic palates. While there are simply too many important coins to mention here, we must call attention to the series of Dutch coins, perhaps the finest ever offered on this side of the Atlantic, and to the many important coins of the Spanish World including a further offering from the Faistauer Collection. Within the Hispanic grouping there are many important gold pieces and a noteworthy selection of Pillar Half Dollars of Guatemala, Lima, and Mexico, so much rarer than their big brothers, the Pillar Dollars.

* * * * *

The sale contains many obsidional coins from European sieges. While there are some significant French, Germanic, Irish, English, and Transylvanian coins included in this offering, the largest number belong to the Dutch series. Within the catalog we have attempted to give a brief precis of each siege, but we felt it appropriate here to give a short overview of the Dutch Wars for the benefit of our American clients. We ask the indulgence of our learned Dutch colleagues for any errors contained herein.

* * * * *

The first and largest group of Dutch siege coins resulted from the revolt of the "Sea Beggars" led by William the Silent, a conflict which lasted for 40 years. The causes of this revolt are too complex to explore here. Suffice it to say that the union of Conservative, Catholic, feudal, imperial Spain and the liberal, industrial, commercial, and partially Protestant Low Countries was doomed to fail. Even the Catholic Dutch provinces rejected the harsh anti-heretical Spanish attitudes. The high taxes which Philip II imposed upon the Dutch were another major sore point. Allegedly, several important Dutch nobles, including Egmont, Horn, and William of Orange, gave their secret support to Calvinist societies. In 1566 the Calvinists staged a four day reign of terror when they looted and destroyed countless Catholic churches and monasteries. Even the Dutch were appalled at their excesses. Philip II went through the roof. He dispatched the Duke of Alva to crush the Dutchmen. Egmont and Horn were executed even though they were knights of the Golden Fleece.

Finally, William the Silent was ready to revolt. It is said of this loud mouthed, hard drinking, hard gambling man that only once in his life did he live up to the cognomen "The Silent"; this was when he was plotting rebellion against Spain. In 1572, exiled sea rovers seized Brill and Flushing, and the war was on. William took nearly all of the Netherlands. Then the brilliant Spanish General, Alexander Farnese, the Duke of Parma, retook the Southern Netherlands for Spain. It was a turbulent epoch which occasioned some of history's most fascinating coins.

The Counter-Reformation and the Thirty Years War certainly did not leave the Netherlands unscathed, but the next important series of siege coins resulted from the wars against Louis XIV of France in the 1670's, a century after the first major coinage series. After the death of Philip III of Spain, Louis claimed the Spanish Netherlands in the name of his queen, the eldest daughter of Philip III, invoking the old custom of devolution. In addition to territorial claims, Colbert longed to destroy the power of the Dutch merchants who often proved an annoying obstacle to his own mercantilist ideas for France. Louis's armies invaded the United Provinces. The Dutch were forced to recall the House of Orange to bail them out of a mess, and William III (later William III of England) took center stage. During these bitter and costly wars, both the Dutch and the French suffered heavily. Eventually, in the true spirit of meddling power politics, the Spanish, the English, and the Austrians were also involved. At this time the handsome coins issued by Amsterdam under siege and the extensive series of coins and medals of Groningen were struck.

The War of the Spanish Succession began in 1701 with the death of Charles II of Spain and lasted for thirteen years. The rival claimants to the throne were Philip of Anjou (grandson of Louis XIV) and the Austrian Archduke Charles. Much of the heaviest fighting of the war took place in the Spanish Netherlands. The French fought against William III's Grand Alliance, consisting of the United Provinces, England, Denmark, most of the German States, and the Holy Roman Empire. During this war, the Duke of Marlborough besieged the city of Tournay whose French commander issued a famous group of obsidional coins.

Collecting obsidional coins, obviously, is not as easy as collecting Lincoln cents by date, filling holes in an album. But instead of an anonymous run of coins, identical except for date or mintmark, each of these obsidional coins is a true piece of history, a mute witness to the wars which created modern Europe.

ALL THE BEST

Our 150th Year

Our clients will be aware that we have been around for a long time, but they may be surprised to learn that our family firm is now completing its 150th year as a going concern. Unlike Spinks or the Schulmans, we have not devoted ourselves solely to coins for all this time, but it has been the same company, engaged in various enterprises.

For much of its history the company conducted a commercial laundry business, the first in the United States, and served shipping lines, hotels, and railroads. It all started with Mrs. Steele in 1832 who established a laundry service in New York and New Jersey for the then new shipping lines crossing the Atlantic. There were the Havre Old Line going to France, and three Liverpool packet companies - the Black Ball Line, the Red Star Line, and the Blue Swallowtail Line. Some of these ships shown in the company's early ledgers include the Pacific, St. Andrew, the then huge Henry Clay and New World. Soon there were steamships as well such as the Royal William of Canadian stamp fame. The great clipper ships followed, taking miners to California for the gold rush: the Great Republic, Flying Cloud, Dreadnought, and Sovereign of the Seas all appear in our ledgers at one time or another.

For over a century our largest shipping client was the Cunard Line, starting with the Britannia in 1840. Many well known Cunarders were our most regular customers — the Servia, Acquitania, Mauritania, Lusitania, Queen Mary, Queen Elizabeth. White Star line was another good client; if the Titanic had ever completed her maiden voyage, we would have done her linen when she got to New York. Of course we did not only supply the English ships. Holland America Lines, Norwegian American Lines, North German Lloyd, and United States Lines were also important customers.

With the coming of the railroads to America, people soon discovered that sooty engines made linen dirty. For many years we did the laundry and linen service for the Pennsylvania Railroad, the New York Central, and the Baltimore and Ohio among others. People who travelled needed to stay somewhere when they arrived. Accordingly, we soon found ourselves in the Hotel linen and laundry service. Starting with the many railroad owned hotels around New York's transportation hub, the business expanded rapidly. The Waldorf Astoria became our largest single unit client, requiring over 1,000,000 pieces per week of laundry and linen at peak times.

After the Second World War, my father saw the coming decline of transatlantic passenger ships and transcontinental passenger trains, two staples of our company. The firm sold its laundry operations to the Hilton hotel chain and embarked upon a new course.

For many years my father had been an avid numismatist. His collecting specialties were Scandanavian coins, Latin America, and platinum coinage. Dad turned an avocation into a vocation and entered numismatics full time. For some years he attended coin shows and issued fixed price lists. Our first coin auction sale was not until 1955. Prices realized in those days do make one weep! An Elizabeth I gold fine sovereign in EF at $175.00. Eight Escudos pieces at $75.00. A Brunswick loser 4 Thaler at $45.00. An 1853 Gothic crown at $40.00. The first 1759 Nuevo Reino pillar dollar which we handled was in a 1956 sale. It fetched $157.50 - not bad at a time when regular pillar dollars could be acquired for about two bucks.

Inevitably, many fine collections have passed through our hands over the years: the O.K. Rumble collection of Ferdinand & Isabella and Carlos & Johanna which included an extraordinary run of early Spanish gold - some of it sold in large lots! The famous Mexican silver dollar sale of 1958; the Lipno world gold collection; the Kurt Prober collection of Guatemala; the Yriarte collection of 8 Escudos and the Yriarte collection of 8 Reales - used to illustrate his books; the Rosholm-Higgie collection of Scandanavia and the Danish West Indies; the Nesmith reference collection of Carlos & Johanna; the first auction of the gold coinage from the 1715 Florida wrecks; the fabulous three part sale of the Parsons collection; the Huie collection of the Philippines; the Roy Pennell collection of foreign banknotes and proofs; the John Willem collections of U.S. coinage and Trade Dollars of the world; the Faistauer collection of Latin America; the Governor Charles Edison collection of worldwide coinage; and many others.

Numismatics has changed quite a bit over the years. There are many more collectors now and many more dealers. Prices have risen, and then declined, and risen again to new higher levels, a process which repeats itself every few years. The long run has shown that the person who likes and acquires nice coins and holds them for a substantial period gains the pleasure of the collection and seldom if ever suffers any financial damage. We plan to still be around to witness the next few cycles. Fifty years from now I plan to hold our bicentennial sale (consignments are not yet being solicited). A century after that, hopefully, some kinsman yet unborn will conduct a tercentenary auction - by which time even Franklin Mint pieces may have some collector value! We enjoy dealing with nice coins and medals and banknotes and nice numismatic books. Though certain commercial aspects of the coin business have inevitably changed over the years, many of the old clichés are still completely true - "Buy the Book Before the Coin," "Rare Coins are Rare. . . but Rare Junk is Still Junk," and, of course, the old universal commercial maxim "You Get What You Pay For."

Coin collecting offers a chance to seize and hold history. A true collection can be described as the intentional and selective gathering of related objects which, when assembled, form a unified and meaningful entity; it is not a casual assemblage or accumulation of rarities, but a cohesive gathering which has been made at the expense of much thought and effort - often in competition with others of like interests. With its treasures and its purpose a coin collection is a visible embodiment as well as an extension of the aspiring, successful self. We like coins, and we know that our clients like coins, and we like that state of affairs just fine.

Enjoy Collecting,

William B. Christensen

DANISH WEST INDIES 1849

In 1849 the Danish West Indies responded to a chronic coin shortage by purchasing foreign coinage (largely U.S. of recent date) and had the coinage countermarked with a crowned FR VII monogram for King Frederik VII. The following lots offer a number of these pieces. Many are from the Ray Byrne collection. See the illuminating comments re the origin of the Byrne pieces in the recent book by Jorgen Somod which casts serious doubts on many well known specimens.

In 1592, Johan IV, Bishop of Strassbourg, died. The Protestant electors opted for Prince Johan Georg of Brandenburg as Bishop; the Catholics voted for Charles of Lorraine. Johan Georg waged a military campaign throughout Alsace and Lorraine to gain possession of Strassbourg, and struck coins during the campaign to pay his troops. His efforts went for naught, and he resigned his claim in 1604 without ever actually gaining control of the See.

Cambrai, in northern France, was besieged by the Spanish under the Count of Fuentes on Aug. 8, 1595. The governor, Marechal de Balagny, defended the city in the name of Henri IV of France. AIRE

In 1710, during the War of the Spanish Succession, Leopold I of Anhalt Dessau, commanding the Allied army, besieged the French cities of Douai, Bethune, and St. Venant. After the fall of these towns he besieged Aire on Sept. 12, 1710. The French governor of the city, M. de Guebriant, defended the city well and, allegedly, used his own silver plate for the striking of these obsidional coins. The garrison was forced to surrender on Nov. 11, 1710 and was accorded full military honors.

GUYANNE INDEPENDENTE

Counani was a disputed territory between Cayenne and Brazil. In 1886 a French writer, Jules Gross, decided to form Counani into an Independent Republic of Guiana, and, with due modesty, consented to accept the Presidency for Life of said ephemeral republic. He created a knightly order and several service medals. "Coins" were struck by Mennig of Belgium. The "Republic" was not recognized by either France or Brazil, and its headquarters in Paris was soon transferred to London where it lasted until 1905 under its second President for Life (and later king) Adolphe Brezet, under the name of Vyana Assu ler. Sounds like a marvelous tax shelter.

- LANDAU
- Landau, near Mannheim, was heavily fortified by the great military engineer Vauban in 1681. During the War of the Spanish succession, in 1702, Prince Louis of Baden besieged the city which was held by French forces under M. de Melac. The siege lasted from June until September when the French surrendered. The silver pieces struck from all sorts of odds and ends of plate, form one of the classic siege series with a true obsidional flavor. In 1713 the French in turn besieged the city which was defended by the Prince of Wurtemberg. After a bitter struggle the city fell on August 21st. Once again, during this siege, silver plate pieces were cut up and stamped for use as coinage.*

AMSTERDAM

In 1578 the troops of the States blockaded the Spanish controlled city of Amsterdam to force the city to accept the Prince of Orange. During the blockade, a large silver statue of St. Nicholas and the silver plate of the church of Notre Dame were turned into obsidional coinage. These coins properly form a part both of the Dutch and of the Spanish series.

This was lot No. 1 of the Schulman auction of Nov. 1925.

When Louis XIV invaded the Netherlands in 1672 and attacked Amsterdam, the people of the city opened the dikes as an obstacle to the French. During the campaign, the States of Holland granted the burgermeesters of Amsterdam permission to strike a special coinage of riders which included the arms of the city. The bullion came from silver bars of the Banque d'Exchange and from gold and silver contributed by the inhabitants.

AUDENARDE

In 1582 the Flemish town of Audenarde was besieged by Spanish troops under Alexander Farnese, the Duke of Parma. With only 400 troops against the entire Spanish army, the garrison still managed to hold out for 3 months, surrendering with full honors on July 5, 1582. During the siege, Governor Frederik van der Borcht ordered the striking of tin obsidional coins to pay his troops.

BOMMEL

Known today as Zaltbommel, Bommel was a strong town in Gelderland. In 1599 the Spanish General Mendoza crossed the Meuse and attacked Bommel. The city was ably defended by Prince Maurice of Orange, the son of William the Silent. He struck a handsome and very rare series of coins during the battles to pay his troops. Maurice constructed a fort which the Spaniards could not carry, and Mendoza was forced to withdraw with a loss of over 700 men.

- 544 BOMMEL. Half Ecu of 15 Stuivers. (1599). Arms of the City/ Towers. 34.80 mm; 11.160 grams. Delm. 564 (this is the Delmonte plate piece). Maillet Suppl 2 but NO. not NO.; Verk. 36/2 var. This example comes from the 1911 Auction of part of the Ruys de Perez collection, sold by Muller of Amsterdam. It was later sold in the Schulman sale of Nov. 16, 1925, to the present consignor. Toned F-VF. Rare and attractive. (1,500.00-2,500.00) PHOTO

BRED A

Breda, in Brabant, having declared for Don Juan, aroused the ire of William the Silent. Accordingly, the States General sent Dutch troops under Hohenlohe and Champaignay to persuade the good burghers of Breda to shift their allegiance. The Spaniards were commanded by Col. Freundsberg, a spirited officer who impressed the Prince of Orange. During the siege, Breda struck obsidional coins to meet its currency needs. With no hope of relief, Freundsberg surrendered the city on Oct. 4, 1577.

- 545 BRED A. Silver 20 Stuivers siege piece on a square flan. 1577. BRE/DAE in circle surrounded by legend. Countermarked with a tower, a fleur, and a posthorn. 26.50 x 27.20 mm; 7.081 grams. GRONINGEN

In 1672 Groningen, in the Northeastern Netherlands, withstood a long siege by the forces of the Bishops of Munster and Cologne. The defenders received supplies and reinforcements via the river and made many sorties. Finally, the attackers were beaten off and decamped on Aug. 26, 1672. Groningen issued a large series of coins and of medals commemorating the siege, patting themselves on the back for their heroic defense. Many have engraved reverse legends and were obviously gifts and presentation pieces at the time and later. Each such individual piece is, of course, unique.

- 556 GRONINGEN. Silver obsidional Ecu of 50 Stuivers, struck on a square flan. 1672. Large arms in large circle. 33.50 x 34.50 mm; 28.120 grams. Maillet 5; Van Loon III/96; Delm. 736. Very Fine. (400.00-500.00) PHOTO

HAARLEM

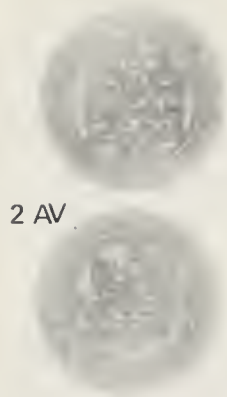

In the early stages of the Dutch revolt against Spain, Haarlem was one of the first cities to undergo a protracted siege. The Duke of Alba sent his son Federico with an army of 25,000 men to teach the Dutch a lesson. The Dutch garrison of Haarlem numbered only 1200 men, but they managed to hold out from Dec. 11, 1572 until July 13, 1573 when they were forced to surrender. During the siege, the magistrates struck an important series of ob- sidional coinage.

LEYDEN

The lovely city of Leyden was besieged by the Spanish under Valdez in the fall of 1573. In the spring of 1574 the siege was lifted so that Valdez could take his army against the forces of the Count of Nassau. Having defeated Nassau on April 14, the Spanish re-invested Leyden until the city was delivered by the Dutch fleet under Admiral Boissot in August. During both phases of the siege, a wide variety of siege coins and commemoratives in paper, silver, and gold were struck.

MAASTRICHT

The important frontier city of Maastricht has undergone many sieges in its history - in 1579, 1673, 1748, 1794, and 1830 among others. In 1794 French forces under Jourdan and Pichegru besieged Maastricht which was defended by 9000 Austrians under the Prince of Hesse. Almost the entire city was burned during the siege. In November, after a heroic defense, Hesse surrendered the town. During this siege, an important series of coins was struck.

- WOERDEN
Woerden in Holland, was besieged by the Spanish under the Count de Megen in 1575. The Dutch governor, Rudolph de Stackenbroek, took as his example the valor of the citizens of Leyden. The siege lasted until Aug. 24, 1576 when the Spanish troops were needed elsewhere to put down a mutiny, and the siege was raised. Obsidional coins in lead and in silver were struck. It is possible that the silver pieces were struck after the siege as commemoratives.

Zierikzee, in Zeeland, was besieged by the Spanish under Mondragon in 1575. Colonel Van Dorp, in charge of the defense, held out until July 2, 1576 when the Dutch garrison was evacuated by sea, and the Spanish entered the town. During the siege coins were struck to pay the garrison. After the siege, the Spanish exacted a tribute payment of 40,000 Daalders from the inhabitants. To meet the first half of the payment, they took their silver plate to the Maison de Ville where it was turned into obsidional coins.

THE CAYENNE TWO SOUS AND THE MACHINE

by Ralph C. Gordon

The small billon 2 Sous coins of the Colonie de Cayenne are perhaps the most common of the older West Indian pieces. As the documents which authorized their coinage are to be found in Zay, we know a good deal about them. By an edict of January 1782, 3,000,000 pieces were ordered to be struck and sent to Cayenne. They were to have a standard of .208 fine silver and a weight of 1.90 grams. They were supposed to be current only in Cayenne, and at 2 sous, but, in fact, they were rapidly disseminated throughout the Lesser Antilles with a value of 2-1/2 Sous (or 1 Noir) in the French islands, 1 Stuiver in the Dutch islands, and 1-1/2 Pence currency (or 1 Black Dog) in the British islands. So widespread was their popularity that the supply in Cayenne became depleted, and a further issue of 3,000,000 was authorized by an edict of October 1788 (coins dated 1789). This latter issue, of course, also travelled throughout the Caribbean.

Simple enough so far. We may add that contemporary accounts include many references to fraudulent pieces made in Birmingham, England. There is one small mystery. Zay noted, obviously after looking at the Fonrobert catalog, that coins had been encountered bearing all dates from 1780-1789 inclusive except 1784 and 1785. He found it odd that a coin should bear a date a couple of years before it was even thought of.

* * * *

About two years ago the author was fortunate enough to obtain access to an X-ray fluorescence spectrograph which, through some miracle of modern science, can tell you exactly how much of a given metal is in a given object, such as a coin. Since such coins as Cayenne 2 Sous are too small for an accurate specific gravity test, and since the lack of silver content was the whole raison d'être of the Birmingham forgeries, this seemed an excellent opportunity to separate the genuine pieces from the false.

Curious as to which TB countermarks, placed on Cayenne 2 Sous in Tobago in 1798, were the official ones, the author sent eight Cayenne 2 Sous, countermarked with varying TBs, to the Machine. The Machine replied that none of them were official, none of them had any silver at all. Intrigued, the author rounded up all the other Cayenne 2 Sous in his collection, both plain and countermarked, twenty-five in all, and sent them to the Machine. Three, just three, contained silver and were genuine! The project has continued since, and the ratio has held up. In a heterogeneous group of Cayenne 2 Sous, only one out of eleven, on the average, will be genuine.

This implies a production of Birmingham forgeries on the order of 60,000,000 coins! The figure is a little startling at first glance, but we should remember that up until 1798 the forgery of foreign coins in England was perfectly legal. Over a period of, perhaps, twelve years, an annual output of 5,000,000 pieces was well within the capacity of the Birmingham industrialists whose machinery was considerably more modern than that of the Tower or Paris mints. In 1795, according to a certain Mr. Bullock, he made a comfortable profit selling the forged Cayenne 2 sous at 3 shillings sterling the gross; in the islands that gross of coins would pass for the equivalent of about 9 shillings sterling, so there was also an ample profit incentive for the distributors.

The 10-1 ratio of forged to genuine Cayenne 2 Sous clears up a number of numismatic problems as we shall see presently; but first let us examine the differences between the goodies and the baddies as indicated by the Machine so that it may be possible for anyone to distinguish them by observation.

Not surprisingly, the substantial two official mintages of 3,000,000 coins each and the large mintage of about 60,000,000 forgeries involved a great number of die varieties. Thus it is not a matter of simply finding one "good" characteristic or one "bad." The forgeries in particular showed many significant differences, and, undoubtedly, there are many more not yet observed. With trial and error two distinguishing criteria were established. When these were applied "in the field" and coins chosen and purchased as "good" on this basis were sent to the Machine, they were indeed pronounced genuine, thus confirming the selected standards.

The first essential characteristic is valuable because it can eliminate roughly 80 per cent of the counterfeits at a glance. If you observe the three fleur-de-lys in the field of the obverse on Figure 1., you will see that the side leaves come down close, like the wings of a bird at rest on the ground. In Figures 2. and 3. the fleur-de-lys side leaves are partly extended like a bird taking off or in flight. Even on a worn coin or one disfigured by a countermark, at least one of the three fleur-de-lys is likely to be sufficiently visible to show either the close type or the flying type. Genuine Cayenne 2 Sous have the close type. Those with the flying type are false.

Some of the forgeries, however, were made by a more skillful counterfeiter and do not show the flying fleur-de-lys (Figure 4.). As a second characteristic, therefore, we must look at the central arch of the crown and normally, use a loupe.

On the genuine Cayenne 2 Sous, but not on the false, the center arch is divided by two lines joined at the top and forming a pointed leaf pattern. Where the center arch meets the small fleur-de-lys in the circlet at the base of the crown, the fleur is fully formed and delineated. This is easier to show than to describe. (Figure 5.).

The center arch test is probably universal; at least no false coin has been found with a good imitation of the characteristic. Since the area is small and subject to wear, however, the flying fleur-de-lys is a useful adjunct. Between the two tests, all but coins completely disfigured or worn virtually flat can be differentiated between Paris and Birmingham, true and fake.

* * * *

As noted previously, the discovery that the forged Cayenne 2 Sous so far outnumber the genuine helps to clear up a number of numismatic questions. The first and earliest problem to be solved is the matter of the various dates. In all, five Cayenne 2 Sous of "odd" dates were submitted to the Machine - 1780 (2), 1781, 1783, and 1786. None had any silver. Since they were dubious to begin with on the evidence of contemporary documents, we may safely conclude that all Cayenne 2 Sous dated other than 1782 or 1789 are forgeries. If, as happens fairly frequently, a piece appears listed as "scarce date" this is perfectly true, but you may be sure that it never saw the inside of the Paris mint.

Somewhat more complicated to analyze is the clear pattern in the distribution of genuine and false coins among the individual islands. The true countermarked Cayenne 2 sous (i.e. genuine cmks on genuine 2 sous) were limited to a few islands; false coins countermarked with official stamps were more frequent.

To understand, the era and the area must be recalled. Islands in the West Indies tended to be either trading posts, like St. Barts (St. Barthelemy), or sugar producers, like Nevis, with some in between. On the producing islands the slave population was very large relative to the total, and the bulk of these small billon coins, sometimes known as "Negroe Money" was concentrated in the hands of the slaves. Everywhere the coins were essential to the local market. There were no large scale market gardens. Generally, the produce and poultry were supplied by slaves from the personal plots allotted to them. A major reduction in the money supply of these markets would badly disrupt an essential part of the local economy, certainly would not enhance productivity on the plantations, and could promptly turn the slaves' normal state of sullenness into rebellion.

It seems probably that the administrators were not aware of the great extent of the problem of the forged Cayenne 2 Sous. It was not (and is not) too easy to distinguish the genuine from the false, and we have records of silversmiths frequently being called in by the authorities. Then the island administrators who had so glibly proposed counterstamping the good coins and throwing the bad into the sea, upon being apprised of the enormous numbers of bad pieces, would face a major social problem.

In the Greater Antilles, Trinidad, and Barbadoes, the Cayenne 2 Sous do not seem to have circulated to any large extent. It is in the Lesser Antilles that they formed the greater part of the small coinage and that the ubiquitous forgeries provoked varying responses to the problem.

THE DO NOTHING APPROACH: Grenada, St. Lucia, Martinique, Dominica, Guadeloupe, and Antigua. The coins certainly circulated in large numbers on these islands, but the local authorities preferred inaction - at least as far as countermarking was concerned.

THE HARD LINE APPROACH: St. Kitts and, probably, St. Barts. St. Kitts was the home base of the then Governor General of the British Leewards, Lord Lavington. It is also where he would have had the bulk of such garrison troops as were available. Perhaps Lord Lavington was a hard line sort. In any event, the tested and observed St. Kitts countermarked Cayenne 2 Sous, both the "S" type and the "S.K." type, have all been on genuine coins. The only exceptions are the contemporary counterfeit S.K. marks (Pridmore 6) which, appropriately, are found on counterfeit coins. In the case of St. Barts, only three specimens have been tested, but they were all found to be authentic. St. Barts, Swedish at the time, had a negligible slave population, being a small, infertile island which thrived on an active trade. The governor would have had little difficulty persuading the merchants of the advantages of a sound currency.

THE RELAXED APPROACH: Tortola, and probably Nevis. In this approach the purpose was to "freeze" all coins on the island at a given time, not to "sanitize" them. Thus, on Tortola in 1801 the Stamping Act only required the holder of Cayenne 2 Sous to swear that they were in his possession prior to February 4, 1801; whether they were genuine or not was of no concern. This fact poses a disadvantage for the numismatist: There is absolutely no way of telling which countermark was official (or whether there was only one stamp) and which were contemporary counterfeits. There was another problem at the time. The coin population did not remain static. After a time there would either be extensive forging of the countermark to enable the new arrivals to circulate, or else a re-countermarking of the coins. For Tortola, of six Cayenne 2 Sous with varying "T" marks submitted to the machine, none were genuine coins. Nor were any of four Hodge tokens. The same case held true for Nevis. Neither the countermark nowadays supposed to be official, nor those supposed to be contemporary counterfeits were on genuine coins.

THE HARD LINE, THEN RELAXED APPROACH: St. Martin and Statia (St. Eustatius). The few examples noted of Cayenne 2 Sous counterstamped with a small StM in a beaded circle (Pridmore 30) for St. Martin have been genuine either by test or by observation. Evidently, St. Martin started off in 1798 with a Hard Line Approach. The issues of 1805 and subsequent years with a larger StM, with an incuse fluer-de-lys, with an incuse M, or with various combinations of these, have all tested false. Thus it seems evident that St. Martin relapsed into a Relaxed Approach and was content to recertify as present coins already on the island. The scenario on Statia is not as clear. The Cayenne 2 Sous counterstamped SE incuse which have been examined have proven genuine; those with SE in relief, with or without a P in relief, are false coins. Apparently, this is a simple Hard Line then Relaxed Approach. But it is difficult to accept the quite expertly made SE in relief as a counterfeit of the crude SE incuse as had been suggested.

THE TOTAL CHAOS APPROACH: Tobago. The Cayenne 2 Sous and stampees marked for Tobago are the most common West Indies counterstamped coins. Varieties of the stamps abound, some of them rather fantastic. In all, fifteen differently marked coins, including both stampees and Cayenne 2 Sous, were sent to the Machine, and in all cases the basic coins were forgeries. Using the established criteria, many other Cayenne 2 Sous with TB or TBo marks have been noted as forgeries on observation. Whether a genuine Cayenne 2 Sous exists with a TB countermark is thus still a question. The entire, rather complicated, proposed "sanitization" of the Tobago billon coinage may have broken down completely before it even got started; certainly it fell apart in short order.

* * * *

We have omitted from our list Montserrat and St. Vincent. In the case of Montserrat, we do not have the act authorizing the counterstamping of billon coins. We do have quite a few Cayenne 2 Sous pieces marked with various sorts of M, but these are not necessarily Montserrat. "M" was used on St. Barts silver and on some St. Martin 2 Sous. M could also be a private mark. In any case, six Cayenne 2 Sous with "M" tested were all forged coins. Pridmore Montserrat No. 8, by observation, is a forgery, so his remarks on p. 151 re Black Dogs cannot be taken at full value. At best the matter is still open.

The St. Vincent act of 1797 calling for the countermarking of Stampees and Cayenne 2 Sous is very explicit, specifying the SV interlaced stamp and even specifying the distance at sea to which the forgeries were to be taken before being dumped overboard. The coins were never called in. Yet they are extremely rare. Given the size and population of St. Vincent relative to, say, St. Kitts, this doesn't make sense. One possible explanation is that, shortly after starting the counterstamping operation, the St. Vincent authorities realized that 91 per cent of their small change would disappear. Forseeing the serious social consequences, they may have called the whole thing off. Then, in 1814, in what may have been a Hard Line Then Relaxed Approach, St. Vincent ordered the importation of Cayenne 2 Sous and Stampees without specifying that they be genuine. These are the billon coins countermarked with a retrograde "S". As might be expected, all tested and examined have been forgeries.

* * * *

Readers interested in the West Indies might wonder how the other billon pieces of the area - the Sols Marqués and the stampees - fared with the Machine. Two old style Sols Marqués and four of the 1738 type were sent to be tested, and all were found to be genuine. But with the Stampees the case is even worse than with the Cayenne 2 Sous. Over thirty have so far been submitted for the Machine's decision; the Machine turned them all down, and without even a single genuine example, no numismatic analysis can really begin.

SOME NOTES ON THE COINS OF SARAWAK

William Wallace Brooke Christensen

Part Seven

Trial strikes, Mint sports, and Counterfeits

Sarawak does not seem to have any true pattern pieces; at least, none have come to light. There are, however, a number of trial pieces connected with the minting process as opposed to patterns submitted for the approval of the Sarawak authorities. Each of these trials may well be unique.

In addition to the above trials, two most interesting mint sports or mules of Sarawak coins are known. They use the obverse of the Copper-Nickel 10 Cents of 1927 with the reverse of the Copper 1 Cent of 1927. This muling results in the country name appearing both on the obverse and the reverse. The cataloguer has heard of only one specimen of each of these coins.

COUNTERFEITS

Sarawak, Brunei, and the Straits Settlements in the latter part of the 19th century had great problems with the circulation of each others copper coinage within the other territories. In addition to genuine copper coinage, there was also a problem with counterfeit coppers. Many of these concoctions, generally cast in copper or brass, would use a Straits obverse with a Sarawak reverse. Some cataloguers have attempted to call these pieces patterns - something which they certainly are not! They are, nonetheless, a most interesting adjunct to the financial and numismatic history of Sarawak.

Like most other coinage of the Far East, Sarawak coins occasionally appear bearing the chopmarks of Chinese merchants. These pieces seem to be quite scarce. Thus far the cataloguer has seen only three different chops on these coins, perhaps from members of Sarawak's Chinese community or from the Straits. The Brooke Family Collection contains the following chopmarked pieces, perhaps done when Sarawak cut the fineness of its silver coinage:

This brings to a close these seven articles on the coinage of Sarawak. In future articles we will treat the Banknotes, Knightly Orders, Decorations, and Medals of Sarawak.
